

So much more than a feeling...

As young and active retirees, personal health matters were exactly the reality check Jack and Pauline Tesselaar needed to start seriously thinking about their future on the large Morrinsville lifestyle block that had been home since they came off the farm.

"The thought of a retirement village didn't really float our boat if we were honest" laughs Pauline! "We've been on the land our whole married life and the thought of being cooped up in the middle of a whole bunch of identical homes just wasn't something that appealed. Ironically, it was soon after that, I saw an advertisement for Matamata Country Club and, with my interest piqued, decided to do a bit of googling and find out more."

More than a little impressed, Pauline said to Jack, I've got something to show you! "I planted the seed, casually left the information out and left the room to give him time to have a look" she says. "When he too agreed the development was more than a little appealing, we made an appointment with Trish and Brendon... and so the journey began..."

"Right from the onset, it was one of those moments in life where everything just felt right" says Jack. "We had always loved the view of the hills from the farm and here, right on the fringe of town, it literally followed us around.

Mature, established trees were part of a very well designed development and, along with the thought of Pauline being in her element planning our first new build, I was very comfortable that, regardless of what our 'senior' years might bring, the complex would provide everything from health and medical care, to facilities that fit our active lifestyle and enjoyment of spending time with our children and grandchildren."

From their very first meeting, Jack and Pauline were thrilled with the flexibility of various floor plans and, with numerous options at their disposal, the ability to really make their new home their own. "Everything you think you might need had been thought of" says Pauline. "High spec, quality fittings and fixtures through to selections of gorgeous curtains, wall and floor coverings were presented on mood boards that truly inspire your own creative flair. I was so excited - and, for the first time in my life, will even have a walk in pantry! The whole process has been so incredibly easy and, without a doubt, has given us complete peace of mind without a single regret. Everyone, including the builders and tradesmen are so approachable and welcoming - we know we've made the right decision and can't wait for the December handover!"

With 35 floor plans ranging between 150 - 278 square metres, Matamata Country Club homes are each uniquely designed with the sophistication of cathedral ceilings, gas fire places and even beautiful imported tiles. Floor to ceiling windows bring the outdoors in and, of course, whether its colours, curtains or kitchens, personal choice is imperative.

Welcoming interested parties for a free, onsite consultation, Trish de Jong is the friendly face that can answer all your questions and introduce you to a lifestyle truly designed for living. ■

RETIRE TO MATAMATA

Crafted to perfection, with all your own touches.

At Matamata Country Club you have the freedom to build your retirement home your way.

Starting from one of our set plans, our team will work with you to make your home your own by selecting the features, textures and colours you love. We'll even keep you up to date with weekly build progress and invite you to site visits because after all - it's your home, and we want you to share the journey with us.

"Everything is high end. All our friends come in and go 'wow, this is not what we were expecting'. You instantly love the place when you walk in. Our son-in-law is a builder. And every time he comes to visit he's always impressed with the quality of the build. He mentions it every time."

RENZO AND ROBYN VETTORI
Residents of sister village 'Tamahere Country Club'

Book your appointment with Trish De Jong
027 301 3126 | sales@matamatacountryclub.co.nz

Office open Monday-Friday, 10am-2pm | 102 Peria Road, Matamata
matamatacountryclub.co.nz

Matamata Country Club